Tracking the Hiring Practices of Male and Female NCAA Women's Head Coaches

The data used to investigate the hiring practices of male and female head coaches was obtained through the Department of Education’s Equity in Athletics Disclosure Act (EADA) across all three NCAA Divisions (I, II, III) head coaches are hiring more male assistant coaches than are female head coaches. In general it would appear that both male and female head coaches should attempt to increase the number of female assistant coaches that they are hiring. With a staff consisting of two assistant coaches, both male and female head coaches are hiring a majority of mixed staffs (1 male and 1 female).
